What the Conference Covers and How to Prepare

The best parent-teacher conferences follow a set agenda. The teacher should have examples of your child's schoolwork, any relevant HYPERLINK "https://www.verywellfamily.com/understanding-score-interpretations-in-testing-2162884" test scores, and observations of the child's class participation, academic work, and social growth to share with you. As a parent, it's helpful to prepare some questions for the teacher conference about anything that confused you or raised a concern during the previous few months of school. Again, be aware of the time you spend with the teacher. If you can't get all of your questions answered to ask for a meeting or phone call at another time.
